VISITING TITLES

VISITING TITLES DEFINITION & EXPECTATIONS

Visiting titles (Visiting Fellow and Visiting Professor) is a prestigious award, normally conferred on an individual, external to the university, with whom a school/department wish to work on a project in some aspect of learning and teaching, knowledge exchange and impact, research or leadership and management.

The appointment is aimed to be of mutual benefit to the University and the individual. Individuals may use the designated title on a personal basis, and this should be described as "title conferred" of Plymouth Marjon University. As a values led University, there is an expectation that all honorary/visiting title holders should exemplify the University values and behaviours.

No remuneration will be paid by the University to those holding an honorary/visiting title. Should the holder of an honorary/visiting title accept a contracted employed post within the University, the honorary title will be withdrawn, however ad-hoc paid work may be undertaken in some circumstances which will not affect the honorary/visiting title. This will be agreed with the Dean/Director of School.

As holding these titles does not constitute employment, there is no requirement to meet any employment/work visa requirements. Visiting title applicants for non-UK nationals will be considered, however, if attending the University all relevant visa requirements must be met. The universities People Team will provide appropriate support where this applies.

It is expected in most instances that a visiting professor will give an Academy Lecture during the first year of their term and engage in further Research & Knowledge Exchange events, such as the Brown Bag and Researcher Developer Series. It is expected in most instances that a visiting fellow will undertake at least one Research & Knowledge Exchange event, such as the Brown Bag and Researcher Developer Series. Where appropriate visiting title holders will be linked to a relevant Research & Knowledge Exchange Group (RKEG) and should maintain contact with the group convenor and support the work of the RKEG.

The pre panel should consider which RKEG the nominee would sit within. Typically, six months ahead of the end of an appointment, RKEO will contact the relevant nominating member of staff, Director of School and/or RKE lead to confirm if the appointment will cease at the end of the appointment term. If an extension is requested, the nominating member of staff should complete a visiting title extension request form to provide an update and details as to the contribution being provided by the visiting title holder.

Requests for extensions will then be considered at the following Universities Academic Promotion Panel meeting and will be subject to the visiting title holder continuing to meet the relevant criteria and continuing to actively contribute to the University.
